NO. 12 MARCH - 2018

Script revision lab in English

The Consulate of Mexico informs that the CINE QUA NON LAB has opened its Call for Applicants for its 2018 Script Revision Lab in English for narrative feature films.

CINE QUA NON LAB is a nonprofit organization based in Morelia, Mexico, and New York City, whose mission is to develop independent cinema by providing a space for filmmakers to envision and develop their work, bringing them together to exchange ideas and find new opportunities for collaboration.

The Script Revision Lab in English is a two-week residential workshop that gives independent screenwriters from around the world the opportunity to work intensively on their feature-length narrative scripts in an environment structured to foster professional collaboration and high-quality script development. Films developed in past editions of the lab have been selected by prestigious film festivals worldwide, such as Cannes, Toronto, Berlin or Sundance, among many others, and have garnered numerous awards and recognition.

The lab will take place in Tzintzuntzan, a small town in the state of Michoacan, Mexico, approximately 50 km from the city of Morelia. The workshop, writing, and living spaces are tucked amidst the beauty of the Sierra Madre Mountains, overlooking Lake Patzcuaro, a quiet natural retreat.

The lab will be held from Sunday, August 5th, through Saturday, August 18th, 2018. Writers or writer/directors from around the world developing a narrative feature film are eligible to apply. Applications will only be accepted for completed scripts that are ready for the revision process.

The lab will be held in English. All participants must have a good knowledge of English.

The submission deadline is March 31st, 2018.
